

Dear Everyone,

Hazel: Danny you need to pick up this room, it's full of clothes.

Danny: I know Mummy, my shorts are like God; they're everywhere.

It appears that we have succeeded in teaching him something about God. Next we need to do some work on folding and hanging.

Greetings from mid-summer in Argentina. I (Hazel) am hoping to get this newsletter done this evening amongst a zillion other things, because I am off on Scout camp at silly o'clock tomorrow morning, so please excuse any poor English. We are going to Rio Tercero, some 250 kilometres away, although still in the Province of Cordoba – Argentina is a big place. One of the Scout groups there is lending us their place for a week, right on the river bank (photos left). This is it looking nice and peaceful as when the leaders went for a visit the other weekend. It won't look quite the same filled with Scouts, but we are looking forward to some fun activities and sharing time together with the kids, many of whom wouldn't go on holiday if it wasn't for Scout summer camp. Please also pray for Martin who will be defending the front line on his own at home in San Francisco. The boys will be riding in the mornings, and Teen is planning on going to Cordoba for a few days along with Baby and Boyfriend which also usefully reduces the probability of warfare between the girls. Hopefully everyone will have a safe, happy and conflict free week. That's from the 8th to the 15th. On the 15th, Hazel won't return to San Francisco with the rest of the Scout group, but will catch a bus directly to Cordoba, meeting up with the rest of the Frost household, who will have come across on the bus. From there we catch another bus to Salta, 900 kilometres away. In Salta, we have some days holiday with the family, followed by our annual Latin Link conference. We have been to Salta a few times before, but we are looking forward to some time off, finding new places to visit, showing the girls around the city – neither of them have ever travelled very much, and catching up with friends.

We leave Salta on the 26th of February, and arrive in San Francisco two buses later, on the 27th. After which it will be all systems go to get everyone back into school for the new academic year. Joni will go in for his secondary introduction on Friday 28th, and everyone else will start back the following week. Baby now four, will also start in the formal education system this year, in the first year of pre-school.

The blog has been updated at www.frostmartinhazel.org For those on Facebook, I am posting links to my FB page when I update the blog for anyone who wants to find me and "friend" me at Hazel Frost. Thank you for all for your prayers and support.

Love From
Hazel Martin
X

Joni & Daniel

Latin Link

